To help you to attain a high level of health and safety knowledge, PAL Institute offers value for money training, courses either in-house or at our training centers.

In-house Training - is without doubt the most effective way to train your staff. People feel more relaxed in familiar surroundings, and tend to learn more if the content relates specifically to their own environment.

PAL Training Centers are conveniently located at well selected venues throughout the country. They provide an alternative to running courses at your own premises. They are designed to provide a relaxed, professional environment in which to aid learning.
